To whom it may concern,

I have been repeatedly informed of rumors and subsequently encountered open accusations regarding the Papacy of Pope Michael II. As a firsthand observer of His elevation, I hereby testify that a Conclave of the Holy Catholic Church, authorized by the Holy See of Pope Michael I., called "Vatican In Exile", convened in Vienna / Austria. This Conclave commenced on July 25th, 2023, and on July 29th, 2023, Archbishop Rogelio Martinez was elected and assumed the Papacy. A comprehensive report on the Vienna Conclave has been published in the August edition of the "Olive Tree", which serves as the official newsletter of the Vatican In Exile (see: https://www.vaticaninexile.com/august_2023_olive_tree.php).

Therefore, there is no reason to doubt the legitimacy of the election of Pope Michael II.

To dispel any possible misconceptions, let me clarify, that the Holy Catholic Church is not in communion with other sects, such as the Vatican II organization, established by heretics disguised as Catholic clergy, who have taken possession of Church properties. The so-called 'excommunication' of this group has no relevance for the Holy Church. While heretics may exert control over earthly wealth and possessions, there is only one legitimate successor to Peter, who holds the Keys of Heaven and serves as the Vicar of Christ on earth.

In a brief address titled 'How Should We Act In A Time Of Confusion,' Pope Michael I. advised clergy and laypeople who were bewildered by the current state of the Holy Church to base their judgments on observable facts rather than thoughts or hearts of individuals. He emphasized that judgments pertain to external actions, not inner personal motivations. He pointed out the straightforward truth that the "Popes" of the Vatican II church are heretics. Consequently, believers must make their own decision regarding whether they wish to be associated with that sect. Moreover, they must maintain consistency in their choice, for one cannot serve two masters. Pope Michael I. also encouraged prayers for those who sincerely strive for sanctity and seek the truth. You can access His brief discourse by following this link: "<https://youtu.be/XS9IC75brBc?si=vVyIpCOF-sJxkeBp>".

In summary, I find no grounds for debate on these matters. Those who adhere to the Vatican II sect are unlikely to be swayed by any fact or argument, as they have chosen to remain in a state of self-deception. Conversely, for those who choose not to follow or be in communion with heretics, the path is clear, and the concept of 'excommunication' from the Vatican II sect holds no relevance.

I hope that someone finds this letter useful, and I encourage everyone to pray for peace and for Pope Michael II.

In Christ,

Simone Seryinger
